

Louisville Daily Express.

OLD SERIES--VOL. XXV.

LOUISVILLE, MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 23, 1869.

NEW SERIES--VOL. I, NO. 1071

THE CITY.

MONDAY'S EXPRESS.

One of the best mediums of advertising in Louisville is the Daily Express on Monday morning. Advertisers should make a note of this, and hand in their favors in good time.

Stealing a Pistol.

Edw. A. Cochrane, a colored boy, was arrested last night and taken to jail for stealing a pistol from Virgil Wiley.

Thanks.

Mr. Frank Yewell, of the Silver Palace Sleeping Car "Jeffersonville," has our thanks for newspapers in advance of the mails. His splendid car leaves Jeffersonville this morning for New York at half-past 9 o'clock.

The best cigars in the market can be had at Edward Peynado & Co's, Louisville Hotel stand.

Negro Bazaar Meeting.

The negroes of O'Bannon's Depot, and that vicinity, had a grand bazaar meeting yesterday. Our colored people went to the number of eight or nine hundred went out in the morning, returning at dark last night. They filled five large passenger coaches and eight box cars.

Fire Alarms.

The alarm at four o'clock Saturday afternoon was occasioned by the firing of a chimney at Sedgwick's saloon, in Third street, between Main and Market; no damage.

The alarm from station 28, (Brook and Main), about 12 o'clock Saturday night, was false. This is the second false alarm that has lately been signaled from that station. The party guilty had better be careful. If caught he will suffer.

The Boat Race Saturday.

The Louisville course was the scene of no little sport Saturday evening. Two races were run. A skiff race for $50, distance two miles, was between Louis Gehhardt in the "John Thomas" and Louis Rehm in the "Josh King." Gehhardt won the race, making the two miles in 24 minutes. In the second race for a purse of $100 between Louis Trace in the "Cricket" and Nat Stinson in the "Kohlhepp," was won by Stinson by a boat's length--time, 19 minutes.

If you wish to smoke a good imported cigar, buy from Edward Peynado & Co., Galt House stand.

Discharged.

It will be remembered that two or three weeks ago, perhaps longer, Mr. Farris, of this city, living on Broadway, was arrested together with a Dr. Engleman, and taken to Madison, Indiana, for trial. Engleman was charged with having stolen goods in Madison and brought them here to be sold. Farris was charged with having been an accomplice. Engleman has been indicted by the grand jury on several different counts, while Farris was discharged, and arrived home Saturday.

Three Hundred Dollars Turned Up.

Yesterday just before he went to church, John Longinatti, a peasant vendor, living in O'Neil's alley, having more money than he wished to carry with him, hid it all, fully $300, in the stove. Before he returned, his wife, who did not know of the hiding, made a fire in the stove to get dinner, and when John arrived it was all destroyed. John's consternation, and his wife's grief, at this loss of all they had, may perhaps be imagined. Strange place to hide away money--that.

Edw. Peynado & Co., are the sole direct importers of Havana cigars in Louisville, Ky.

Our Friends, the Doctors.

We know that our friends of the College of Physicians and Surgeons are averse to seeing the names of any of its members in print, but as the documents furnished elsewhere are official they will have to submit to this infliction. The controversy is between Doctors, who it is said, will "disagree," as well as sundry members of the Council who comment in terms rather severe upon members of said college. The article will repay a careful perusal.

Hot but Noisy.

Yesterday was but by some of the observant ones to be the hottest day that has been experienced in Louisville for nine years; but hot as it was, and much as the heat should incline the people to quiet, it was a noisy, uproarious day in various localities. At eight o'clock the arrests at the jail amounted to twenty-six--as motley a looking crowd as the castle ever contained--many of them women, with blackened eyes, disheveled hair and torn clothing. The arrests at Clay-street station numbered some ten or twelve. As a result, Judge Craig will have a busy court this morning.

The Comet? Or a Cloud?

At 8 o'clock last night the much-talked about comet made its appearance in the northern heavens; if not a comet, it had all the appearance of one, except that the nucleus was not visible--only the tail. It appeared to head towards and near the "dipper," and stretched away in a curve nearly down to the horizon at an angle of about thirty degrees with it. If not the tail of the comet what was it? There were no clouds visible in that part of the heavens, unless that appearance was one; if so the cloud had a very peculiar and unusual shape. As the moon emerged from behind a heavy bank of cloud that lay in the eastern horizon, the appearance was no longer visible. What was it? Look for it to-night before the moon rises.

HOMICIDE AT A BALL.

Charles Schneider Killed by Joe Bowman.

Great Excitement.

The little hamlet or German settlement called Hamburg, within the city limits, was, on Saturday night, the scene of a ball and a homicide. One of our German citizens, whose name has not transpired, living on Howard street, between the Newburg and Bardstown turnpikes, gave a ball at his house, which was crowded, and the evening passed off happily to all till about eleven o'clock. At this hour Chas. Schneider and two of the young ladies went down the hill to the pump for fresh water. While there a party, composed of Joe Bowman, Weatherly, and two others, came up to the house, and a disturbance ensued immediately, and the appearance was favorable to a terrible disturbance. Hearing the excitement, the two young ladies ran to the house, Schneider following them. As he approached the house he recognized Weatherly in the moonlight, and being acquainted with him, as it appears, stepped up and begged him not to go to fighting or raising any disturbance there. Another man named Miller, observing that Weatherly had a stone in his hand, went up to him and taking away the stone, which fell to the ground. At this juncture the disturbance Bowman struck with a large knife at Schneider. Miller was cut on the little finger, and S. in the arm while attempting to ward off the blow. Bowman then struck another blow, cutting a gash three inches long, just between the ribs on the left side. Schneider cried out "you have cut me," staggered a few steps and fell. He lived but a few minutes after being cut, and died where he fell. Bowman made his escape in the excitement, and has not yet been arrested.

Bowman and Schneider were both young men, and so far as appears, had not been personally engaged in any quarrel or ill-feeling. Schneider is one of the youngest of four brothers--the father keeping a grocery at the corner of Howard street and the Newburg road. Bowman lived with his father's family on the Bardstown road, not far from Howard street. The coroner held an inquest on the body yesterday morning, and the jury returned a verdict, that deceased came to his death from a knife-wound at the hands of Joe Bowman. The evidence before the jury was clear and explicit, but Coroner Moore has decided to withhold it from the public until the case comes to trial in the Criminal Court. This terrible event has cast a gloom over the suburb of Hamburg, and thrown at least two families into deep grief.

"How's Your Pups?"

There is a friend of ours up town, and he is a clever fellow. In fact he is so clever that, like Wellington de Boots, he is "everybody's friend." Of course, he is just the one to be subjected to the pranks of the devilish young rascals about town. Among his peculiarities one is that he hates cur dogs. He admires a fine pointer or setter, but he hates curs with all his heart--which is big as a mountain. A few nights since "the boys" gathered up a half dozen of the ugliest curs they could find, turned them into his front yard, which is surrounded by a high fence, and there they were secure for the night. They tried to get out, and failing, they yelped and howled, and made night hideous. His neighbors only, however, were tormented, for our friend is a hard-worker and therefore a sound sleeper. But when he awoke in the morning he discovered the pests and tried to drive them away. He threw out at them his boot-jack, the shovel and tongs followed, and then the water pitcher. The poor animals only got out when a passer-by opened the gate. The joke was not yet suspected until the victim came down town. One of the fellows inquired, "How's your pups?"--how did you sleep last night? A repetition of the question, "How's your pups?" opened his eyes. He saw he had been played on, and vows vengeance if it is ever done again. But the boys laugh over their midnight prank.

Robbery in Day Light.

Saturday afternoon, as ex-Gov. Meriwether was walking on Fourth street, a well-dressed negro stepped up and asked to be directed to the residence of General ---, a Confederate officer. Gov. M. stopped a minute to say he did not know the party--when the fellow seeing the Governor's pocket-book slightly exposed from his vest pocket, snatched it and ran. The Governor set up a cry of "stop thief!" but nobody paid any attention to the fellow. The police, getting on the trail, traced him to West street, in the neighborhood of Walnut. He had run through a house into the yard, over into a lot--out into Tenth street, then up an alley, and then the trace was lost. Up to this hour, the negro, who is believed to be a stranger, has not been found.

A Wife-Whipper.

About one o'clock yesterday morning, A. M. Beck, who keeps a saloon on Third, between Market and Jefferson, fell upon his wife, in a drunken rage, and bent her nearly to death. He kicked her in the stomach and ribs till her breath was nearly gone, and broke a chair in beating her. The police, getting wind of the affair, arrested and lodged him in jail.

Louisville and the Southern Trade.

Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, Memphis and even the little city of Evansville, are making the most untiring exertions to obtain the trade of the South and Southwest--or to divide it with the larger cities of the East. Baltimore and the seaboard cities possess, and will no doubt continue to hold the trade of the Southeast; but there is no sufficient reason for permitting the direct South and Southwest to go off to those cities to obtain supplies.

For the last few years Southern trade has not been such a rich prize as before the war, but this year's crop will be so abundant as to put that portion of the country into reasonably good condition--financially considered--and the trade with that region will once more begin to assume the proportions and equal, if not exceed, the values of former years. Cincinnati is convinced of this, and is making an effort to control that trade, investing ten millions, when, hitherto, she has never invested one cent. St. Louis has her eyes open, and is stretching out her hands to grasp the prize. Chicago is making a rush for all she can grasp. Memphis and Evansville are following hard in the wake of the others. What is Louisville doing?

We are told every few days that Louisville possesses the key which will enable her to unlock all the treasures of trade in the Mississippi Valley; that she has the healthiest location in the United States; that she has the best stocks of goods in the world; that she possesses a water-power unsurpassed on this continent; that she can sell better goods for a certain price than any other point, or the same quality of goods for a less price, &c., &c., all of which may be admitted, and what then? Does the admission bring the trade? Do the facts bring the trade? Are our merchants and business men making any adequate efforts? Some few may be, but the great majority are not.

Suppose A buys a stock of goods to the value of a million, so as to give him the largest, richest and most varied assortment in all the land; and suppose further that the people of New Orleans or Memphis, or Galveston need that character and quality of goods, and A knows they do, will he sit down in his counting-room, having his goods all ready for exhibition and sale, and wait for New Orleans to come to him to make inquiries as to his stock? Does the fisherman prepare his bait and hook and line and sit down in his own house expecting to catch fish? Does he even seat himself on the river bank, and with his tackle lying behind him, expect the fish to come out of the water and do battle with him for the possession of the bait? How successful would such an angler be, and how long before he could expect success? Can A follow such an example and calculate upon a different result?

But it may be replied, A is not so silly, he advertises liberally in all the city papers--in a number of papers elsewhere; so far, so good--he is in the line of success. But the city papers do not reach all the consumers nor dealers in the land. The local papers of other districts do no accomplish the purpose either--thousands of people read no papers at all, and of these thousands, many hundreds might be made customers. How then shall he reach them? Circulars he could send, but first must learn names and addresses. Circulars and cards are good--indispensable in their place--but they are not enough. What do they in other cities? How does Cincinnati manage to go past Louisville into the region south and southwest of us and sell her wares by the thousand. Cincinnati advertises liberally--that's true. Cincinnati sends out immense number of cards and circulars--that's true; but both of these, good as they are, would fail without a third and completing method. What is it? She sends out agents or drummers by the hundreds--perhaps thousands--abundantly supplied with cards and circulars, but these agents also carry with them samples of their wares, and price-lists, and are thus enabled to show quality, style and price of goods. Personal application and ocular demonstration are the effective, convincing means. These means are employed in every city, town and village, on every plantation, and at every cross-roads tavern. Agents are not satisfied with one trip; but they keep going--the whole land is occupied--every dealer and consumer is visited--and thus sales are effected.

IN A FIX.

Another Good Samaritan.

A couple from the interior, as green as green can be, but who loved each other well enough to run away from their cruel parents, arrived here one day last week. The girl was under age and there was no possible way to get the marriage knot tied. It was suggested to the man that he could get the business done in Indiana, and thither the pair journeyed. But they discovered that it cost more money than they had to obtain the necessary documents, and they couldn't get credit. In this emergency they returned and went back to the hotel where they had stopped on Broadway, and the lover bewailing his misfortune, told his story. Several persons laughed but didn't help him, but one generous fellow swore that a runaway couple should not want for a few dollars to make them happy, and furnished him with the stamps. They were spiced before night, and have gone back to their country home. The young man who gave the happy couple this, their first lift in life, did a deed of which he need not be ashamed, for what are a few dollars in comparison with the happiness of two loving hearts?

BASE BALL.

Southern Club Again Victorious.

The game Saturday evening between the Southern and Eagle clubs, was exciting and hotly contested, and resulted in a victory for the Southern by a score of 25 to 22. The following is the summary.

SOUTHERN.		EAGLE.
Bodley, P.	2	Holtzma, I.	2
H. Truman, B.	2	Fay, C.	1
G. Truman, J.	1	Trout, J.	2
Limberlake, L.	5	Larkin, J.	2
O. Truman, C.	3	Hennessey, J.	2
Baynes, S.	4	Douglas, C.	1
McKinnon, C.	3	Gallagher, F.	2
Tracy, S. B.	4	Budendorff, S.	2
McClough, F.	3	Keefe, J.	1
Total	27	Total	22
Scores per Innings	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9	Total	25
Southern	1 1 3 3 5 6 4 2	Eagle	2 4 1 0 1 3 2 7

Umpire--Dr. Woodruff.
Scorer--W. H. Lindsay for Eagles; R. E. Warner for Southern.

Passed balls--Eagles, 2; Southern, 13.
F. catches--Eagles, 4; Southern, 7.
Catches missed--Eagles, 3; Southern, 4.
Bases on hits--Eagles, 20; Southern, 15.
Left on bases--Eagles, 5; Southern, 15.
Bases on called balls--Eagles, 6; Southern, 1.
Struck out--Eagles, 2; Southern, 1.
Home runs--Eagles, 1; Southern, 0.
Wild throws--Eagles, 0; Southern, 2.

Personals.

A trio of refugees from Havana, Cuba, Mons. Theodore Vanrigand J. B. Larado and August Fane arrived in the city yesterday. They are stopping at the National Hotel.

Captain Dexter, of the Quickstep, is in the city, stopping at the National Hotel. He wishes to charter a boat for the Evansville and Cairo trade. He is building at Pittsburgh a side-wheel steamer, intended for this trade, but she will not be completed until next October.

Great Excitement at Lebanon.

FRESH DISTURBANCES IN THE INTERIOR.

State Guard Ordered Out.

The armory of the Waddell Grays was the scene of very considerable excitement Saturday night and yesterday morning. Saturday night Major Allen received an order to call out the State Guard and have a battalion in readiness to march. The order was immediately complied with. The Guard turned out at the call in large numbers, and the boys slept on their arms. Yesterday morning, no doubt in consequence of the great heat, a few of the Guard not coming to time, were brought up by the corporal, and at half past 9 o'clock a special train being ready, the battalion, consisting of the Waddell Grays, Thomas Zouaves, and Helm Guards, left for the scene of the disturbance, under command of Major Allen.

The movement was kept so secret as possible, until the troops left, and then a thousand different rumors floated around the city--little knots of people gathered here and there, discussing the events of the night and morning. After making all possible efforts to arrive at an understanding of the matter, all that could be learned was that the Governor had ordered these troops to Lebanon, in consequence of disturbances--outlawry in Marion and adjoining counties, which the sheriff with his posse cannot successfully combat. But of what exact nature these disturbances are, none can do more than conjecture. Whether these fresh scenes are by the same band of outlaws, for whose suppression Gen. Wolford lately called out the Guard, or an entirely different set of miscreants, has not thus far been ascertained. Under the law the Governor has the right to offer a reward for the capture of all such outlaws--or to suppress the disturbance by calling out the State troops. That he has taken the latter course would seem to indicate a serious state of affairs.

There is some mystery in this affair which cannot be solved at the present writing. There is a company of United States troops at Lebanon, and no information has been received at headquarters, in this city, of any disturbances requiring the intervention of the military. It is probable, however, that the United States troops would not be called out until the State authorities should find it impossible to repress any outbreak that may have occurred.

There is some mystery in this affair which cannot be solved at the present writing. There is a company of United States troops at Lebanon, and no information has been received at headquarters, in this city, of any disturbances requiring the intervention of the military. It is probable, however, that the United States troops would not be called out until the State authorities should find it impossible to repress any outbreak that may have occurred.

Response of the Council Hospital Committee.

To the General Council of the City of Louisville.

GENTLEMEN--The paper referred to us from the College of Physicians and Surgeons by your honorable body, has been duly considered, and we would respectfully ask leave to state: That we regret that a lay committee of the honorable and learned members of the medical profession, should have permitted a paper of this character to emanate from it. Feeling as we do, that it needs an apology, and none having accompanied it, we would suggest an apology for that honorable body; that they did not understand it in all its bearings or they would never become father to such a document. If it was intended as an essay on erysipelas, there is nothing remarkable in it to distinguish it from many such presented by young men in your medical schools when seeking the degree of Doctor of Medicine, save the names of the distinguished gentlemen attached to it.

As a statement of what transpired in the Louisville Marine Hospital, it is nearly devoid of correctness; and if there can be discovered any good intentions in it, we have failed to perceive them. It is true that erysipelas, to the extent of four or five cases, did prevail in the Louisville Marine Hospital. It is also true that on its first appearance, or rather on the first giving indications of the disease was immediately placed in a separate, unoccupied part of the hospital, where all the other cases, as they were developed, were placed, thus making a complete separation of the erysipelatous patients from those not affected with that disease. The best known disinfectants were liberally used, and we contend, successfully, because the disease did not spread beyond five cases. With these facts looking the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the face, how could they state that there was "imperfect separation of the respective patients from those in the general wards?"

As to the seeming desire of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, to assist the parties now superintending the erection of the new wings, and alterations to the old buildings, we would simply state that any suggestions made by that honorable body, in a proper way, and for the welfare of the present or future inmates of the institution, will be thankfully received, and if meritorious, acted on; but we would suggest to the College that it would show more practical sense, and a much greater degree of courtesy; as well as exhibit the more generous feeling of a co-laborer, if they would first seek to know the kind and character of alterations intended before making suggestions that have already been determined on by the parties having charge of the work.

We would further state that there is an evident effort on the part of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the paper under consideration to bring into disrepute the present management of the hospital, notwithstanding the knowledge they must have of the untiring and successful efforts made by the officers of the hospital to enlarge and alter this building to accommodate the present and future wants of our city.

As an act of charity on our part we feel inclined to forgive this wanton attack on the Hospital, its officers and management, because we feel sure practical sense and perspective that through purporting to come from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, it did really emanate from a few disaffected individuals (members of the college) who have used that honorable body as an instrument through which to gratify their personal enmity to some one or more of the officers of the institution, or possibly for the advancement of some individual interest.

THE DOCTORS AGAIN.

THEY SEND A MEMORIAL TO THE COUNCIL.

HOW IT IS CRITICISED.

SHARP RESPONSE TO THE DOCTORS.

Not long since a memorial was addressed to the City Council by a committee from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Louisville, setting forth--

1st. That at a meeting of the college aforesaid, held July 22, 1869, it was reported that cases of erysipelas had occurred in the Marine Hospital, and that owing to the imperfect separation of the patients from those of the general wards, another patient, upon whom a surgical operation had been performed, was infected with the disease, and died.

2d. That the epidemic--erysipelas--had often visited the hospital, Dr. Gross stating in his system of surgery that it prevailed there in '44, '45 and '46.

3d. That erysipelas stands foremost amongst all contagious diseases--that it spreads by a real and palpable material floating in the atmosphere of the sick room and attaching itself so firmly to walls, furniture, clothing, &c., that even the most careful ventilation for weeks and months does not suffice to destroy it.

4th. That in view of these facts the most stringent measures on the part of the hospital administration are required for erysipelas cases, and that while making additions to the hospital, it would be well to renovate the building throughout, to renew the plastering and floors, and to thoroughly drain the grounds. And further, that all the modern improvements in ventilation and heating that have been approved in Europe and our Eastern cities should be adopted, and that a separate ward, detached from the main building, should be built for infected patients, or that a supply of tents should be kept ready to be pitched in the hospital yard for the accommodation of such patients.

This is the sum and substance of the memorial of the committee, which was signed by Drs. E. S. Gaillard, S. C. Brandies and A. B. Cook. Below we give the reply of the Trustees of the Hospital, and of the Physicians and Surgeons in charge of the institution. The reply of the Trustees is especially salty, and will make fine reading for this warm weather.

Response of the Council Hospital Committee.

GENTLEMEN--The paper referred to us from the College of Physicians and Surgeons by your honorable body, has been duly considered, and we would respectfully ask leave to state: That we regret that a lay committee of the honorable and learned members of the medical profession, should have permitted a paper of this character to emanate from it. Feeling as we do, that it needs an apology, and none having accompanied it, we would suggest an apology for that honorable body; that they did not understand it in all its bearings or they would never become father to such a document. If it was intended as an essay on erysipelas, there is nothing remarkable in it to distinguish it from many such presented by young men in your medical schools when seeking the degree of Doctor of Medicine, save the names of the distinguished gentlemen attached to it.

As a statement of what transpired in the Louisville Marine Hospital, it is nearly devoid of correctness; and if there can be discovered any good intentions in it, we have failed to perceive them. It is true that erysipelas, to the extent of four or five cases, did prevail in the Louisville Marine Hospital. It is also true that on its first appearance, or rather on the first giving indications of the disease was immediately placed in a separate, unoccupied part of the hospital, where all the other cases, as they were developed, were placed, thus making a complete separation of the erysipelatous patients from those not affected with that disease. The best known disinfectants were liberally used, and we contend, successfully, because the disease did not spread beyond five cases. With these facts looking the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the face, how could they state that there was "imperfect separation of the respective patients from those in the general wards?"

As to the seeming desire of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, to assist the parties now superintending the erection of the new wings, and alterations to the old buildings, we would simply state that any suggestions made by that honorable body, in a proper way, and for the welfare of the present or future inmates of the institution, will be thankfully received, and if meritorious, acted on; but we would suggest to the College that it would show more practical sense, and a much greater degree of courtesy; as well as exhibit the more generous feeling of a co-laborer, if they would first seek to know the kind and character of alterations intended before making suggestions that have already been determined on by the parties having charge of the work.

We would further state that there is an evident effort on the part of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the paper under consideration to bring into disrepute the present management of the hospital, notwithstanding the knowledge they must have of the untiring and successful efforts made by the officers of the hospital to enlarge and alter this building to accommodate the present and future wants of our city.

As an act of charity on our part we feel inclined to forgive this wanton attack on the Hospital, its officers and management, because we feel sure practical sense and perspective that through purporting to come from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, it did really emanate from a few disaffected individuals (members of the college) who have used that honorable body as an instrument through which to gratify their personal enmity to some one or more of the officers of the institution, or possibly for the advancement of some individual interest.

As to the application of the code of medical ethics to the treatment by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of two of their members, who had charge of the hospital during the time alluded to in the paper under consideration (one as attending physician the other as attending surgeon), we say nothing. If they acted in accordance with medical and surgical usage in the separation of erysipelatous patients in the wards of the hospital (which we contend they have), why is it that no charges are made against them by your honorable body?

Feeling satisfied that we have refuted every statement made, and also feeling that we have accounted for the motives of the parties who were movers in the getting up of the paper, we will close this report by asking the attention of the General Council to the statement of the attending physicians and surgeons and resident graduates who had the supervision of the erysipelatous patients alluded to in the paper from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which statement accompanies this report.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE H. WALLING,
J. A. KRACK,
PHIL. T. GERMAN,
Trustees of the Marine Hospital.

The Hospital Visiting Surgeons Also Speak.

To the Honorable Board of Trustees of the City Hospital:

In answer to your communication referring to the hospital faculty that part of a memorial address by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, to the General Council, which charges the hospital faculty with negligence in that they do not properly separate patients having erysipelas from those infected, we, the visiting surgeons and physician and resident graduates in charge of the wards of the hospital at the time of the occurrence of the cases of the erysipelas referred to in that memorial, submit the following statement of facts: The first case was developed in the month of May. As soon as a suspicion of the nature of the disease was entertained, before it could, with certainty be pronounced erysipelas, the patient was removed from the ward to the fifth story of the building (in the central part of the house, the wards being in the wings), two stories above the wards. A special nurse was provided and all other proper precautions taken to prevent the spread of this disease. About the last of the month of May two other cases of erysipelas were developed in the wards. Then the superintendent was requested to furnish a tent for the use of these patients. As it could not be furnished, the patients were removed from the wards to a room in the fourth story of the house, where they were entirely isolated, a special nurse attending them.

At the same time a patient was admitted to the hospital who proved to have erysipelas. This patient was immediately removed from the ward to the room in the fourth story occupied by the patients having the same disease. The same precautions were taken as in the cases above referred to.

These four cases were all that were in the wards during our attendance. We are informed by the visiting faculty at present in charge that there have been no cases of erysipelas in the hospital wards since that time. It is reported that there was one other case in the hospital, a private patient, attended by a physician not a member of the hospital faculty. We cannot account for this case, as we have no official knowledge of it. Very respectfully,
R. H. SINGLETON, M. D., Visiting Surgeon.
J. W. HOLLAND, M. D., Visiting Physician.
W. E. DUCY, M. D., Resident Graduate in charge of Surgical Ward.
P. B. STARR, M. D., Resident Graduate in charge of Medical Ward.

TOWN TOPICS.

Removed.

Messrs. J. H. Griffin & Sons, who have been doing an extensive business in ready-made clothing and gentlemen's furnishing goods on the southwest corner of First and Market streets, have removed to the corner immediately opposite, where they have fitted up one of the largest and handsomest stores in the city, and are now better prepared than ever to supply their numerous customers with everything in their line. In addition to their heavy stock of ready-made clothing, they always keep on hand a large supply of cloths and cassimeres, which they will make up in the handsomest styles, as they keep in their employ some of the most skillful workmen in the city. We are glad to see that they are already doing a splendid business, in spite of the dull times. So much for selling the best of goods at the lowest prices.

Notice the advertisement of constable sale by S. T. Moore & Co., in another column.

Fine and Fashionable Hats

In every sense of the word can be obtained of DuBois, the Fourth-street hatter. The latest styles always on hand and of the best quality. Ask for DuBois.

Mortality Report for Week Ending Aug. 21.

HEALTH OFFICE.		LOUISVILLE, KY., AUG. 21.
Dysentery	4	Typhoid fever	2
Cholera infantum	4	Consumption	4
Convulsions	1	SUB-SUBJECTS
Old Age	2	Heart Disease	2
Meningitis	3	Bronchitis	1
Cancer of Stomach	1	Diphtheria	1
Drowned	1	Peritonitis	1
Pneumonia	1	Unknown	15
Total	22	Total	52

SEXY.

Male	29	Female	23
Color.
White	40	Black	12

NATIVITY.

Ireland	2	America	46
Germany	4

Under three years... 25
3 to 10 years... 3
10 to 20 years... 3
20 to 30 years... 6
30 to 40 years... 4
40 to 50 years... 1
50 to 70 years... 3
70 and over... 3
Unknown... 11

Without medical attention.

SAMUEL MANLY, M. D., Sec'y of Board of Health.

Dramatic Trouble in Omaha.

The other night a dispute arose among the fair corpses in the green room of the Omaha Theater Company. One of them should assume the part of leading lady in the can-can. Miss Victoria Rose claimed that she had the right to that position, which was denied by Miss Emma Lloyd, who declared she would not go on the stage in any other role. Miss Etie Barker also asserted that she would not take the boards if Miss Jennie De Vero were allowed to take one of the prominent characters. There were hot times for a few minutes, which so disgusted the manager that he appeared before the certain and announced that there would be no performance. The troupe was thereby broken up.

Mr. Patti-Caux is said to be--well, as ladies who love their lords now-a-days are reported not to wish

